Marsolino Awarded Thruway Contract

MARSOLINO Construction Co., Uniontown, yesterday was awarded the contract for construction of the section of the Stroudsburg Thruway from Stroudsburg to Bartonsville at its low bid of $3,731,137.

The section will include 3.28 miles of limited-access, four-lane highway with a 65-foot earthen median strip between the lanes.

It also includes construction of six bridges over Pocono Creek and ramps and service roads.

The State Highways Dept.

opened bids on the section and a second, from Bartonsville to west of Tannersville on Dec. 30.

Another Award

In announcing award of the contract to Marsolino, the department said the contract will be awarded later for construction of the Bartonsville-Tannersville section, 3.10 miles long and including four bridges over Pocono Creek.

The apparent low bidder for the Bartonsville-Tannersville section was No. 1 Contracting Co. of West

Pittston at $2,526,785.67.

Both sections, together with the Stroudsburg Thruway, are part of Interstate Route 80, which will eventually extend from New York to San Francisco.

Interstate 80 crosses Pennsylvania from Delaware Water Gap to Sharon. In Monroe County, it is the eastern terminus of the Keystone Shortway and the two new sections also are part of the Penn.-Can Highway linking Stroudsburg and Binghamton, N. Y., by way of Scranton.

House Votes To Enlarge Rules Committee, 217-212

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Kennedy administration won a thin 217-212 victory Tuesday in a House vote to loosen—if not break—a conservative grip on its legislative business.

The immediate was increasing the membership of the Rules Committee—the traffic control of House operations—by three members. Speaker Sam Rayburn, D-Tex., won as the administration leader.

The long-range effectiveness of the change will be proved by time, and the political leanings of the new rules members.

The outcome was a close squeak victory for Rayburn, who said his plan for reducing the power of a Republican-Southern Democratic coalition on the committee was "the only way we can be sure" of enacting President Kennedy's program.

"Let's move this program," Rayburn pleaded just before the vote. "Let's be sure we can move it."

Republican critics denounced the plan as a sinister and dangerous move to pack the Rules Committee and convert it into a rubber stamp for the President. The committee will be enlarged from 12 to 15 members as a result of the House vote.

On the roll call vote Rayburn was backed by 195 Democrats and 22 Republicans. Opposing him were 64 Democrats and 148 Republicans.

All But 6 Vote

Since there are two vacancies, this meant all but six of the 437 members voted, the biggest turnout since Aug. 14, 1959. That was when 428 members participated in a 303-125 vote to pass the Landrum-Griffin labor bill.

Two Republicans left hospital sickbeds to vote against the Rayburn proposal. They are Reps. B. Carroll Reece of Tennessee and Edgar W. Hiestand of California. Rep. George M. Grant, D-Ala., who recently underwent a gall bladder operation, also left the hospital to vote.

On the losing side was Rep. Howard W. Smith, D-Va., chairman of the Rules Committee and veteran of 30 years in the House, who fought to preserve the present committee lineup of eight Democrats and four Republicans.

Under Rayburn's plan the committee, which controls the flow of legislation to the House floor, will be expanded to 10 Democrats and five Republicans.

Theoretically, at least, this is designed to give administration supporters an 8-7 majority. However, there are still a number of imperfections that may not always work out as the leaders hope.

As now constituted, the committee frequently has split into a 6-6 deadlock on legislation bearing a liberal tag, with Smith and Rep. William M. Colmer, D-Miss., voting with the four Republican members against the six remaining Democrats.

Walter Plays Big Role In House Vote

Special To The Daily Record

WASHINGTON — Congressman Francis E. Walter's stature as an organizer soared still higher yesterday when the House of Representatives voted, 217-212, to pass the resolution to expand the rules committee.

All but three Republican congressmen from Pennsylvania voted against the proposal backed by the Democratic administration. Those Pennsylvania Republicans voting for an enlarged rules committee were Reps. Scranton, Corbett and Fulton.

Walter's Efforts

Ever since Congress convened, Rep. Walter has played a leading role in efforts to obtain a majority of votes to enlarge the committee to 15 members so as to prevent the blocking of President Kennedy's program in the House.

The Eastern congressman said his interests in the passage of the resolution was to insure help for the depressed areas in Pennsylvania, which the Kennedy administration is committed to help in this Congress.

In the showdown yesterday, the Democrats selected Walter, their caucus chairman, to plead their case. In a sharp voice, his sharp, crisp sentences were heard by a packed gallery. His speech drew a heavy round of applause as did Sam Rayburn's. The speaker's comments came after the verdict had been announced.

Mr. Walter's address to the House of Representatives: "Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the resolution to enlarge the rules committee of the House.

"It is just about 24 hours ago when we heard in this House, the sobering but stirring message of the President of the United States. As of the minute he spoke, the eyes of the world, particularly the hostile eyes that watch us from behind the iron curtain, focused on us here in the House of Representatives.

"Every move which we make is going to be watched by our friends and enemies alike. Every mistake we make is going to be magnified by hostile propaganda so as to make even our friends believe that the nation and its representatives do not stand back of the President of the United States.

Is Our Job

"The great young man who addressed us yesterday laid foundations for action. He courageously undertook commitments. The fulfillment of his commitments—upon which the survival of this nation and indeed the survival of freedom depends—is our job.

"The propaganda value of a negative vote on the resolution cannot be overestimated. A negative vote on the resolution will hand to our enemies on a silver platter the priceless instruments which will be used in their attempts to destroy us.

"Mr. Speaker, before this day is over, we must once again face the stark facts brought before us yesterday by our new leader. The eloquence of those facts must have the effect of a command. We must not fall the U. S. and its leader in our vote today."

Cuban Court Sentences 6 Americans To 30 Years

HAVANA (AP)—A Cuban military tribunal sentenced six American adventurers to 30 years in prison Tuesday for "crimes against the powers of the state."

The prosecution had demanded death before a firing squad. International political considerations apparently influenced the verdict to spare their lives. Thirty years is the maximum prison sentence under Cuban law.

The six claimed they had come to Cuba in a fishing boat to help Fidel Castro's revolution and not to fight it. The tribunal that heard them finished deliberating three days ago.

Days before reaching a verdict and announcing it are not uncommon here. But informed legal sources said Prime Minister Castro had been weighing the verdict.

The decision was seen as a reaction to President Kennedy's State of the Union message, in which Communist domination of Cuba was denounced.

In Washington, the State Department declined comment pending a receipt of a full report on the case which it has requested from the Swiss embassy.

The Swiss have been handling U.S. affairs in Cuba since the United States broke diplomatic ties with Cuba.

Senate Puts Off Tax Vote

HARRISBURG (AP)—The Senate Tuesday put off until next week a showdown vote on Gov. David L. Lawrence's proposed $180 million revenue program. They lacked the votes to pass it this week.

Sen. Charles R. Weiner, Democratic floor leader, said the 20-bill package, including a $74 million a year gasoline tax boost, will probably be called to a vote next Tuesday afternoon.

But there were signs the Democrats—evenly divided with Republicans, 25-25—were having trouble mustering the required 26-vote constitutional majority required to give final approval to the House-passed legislation.

Sen. John J. Haluska, D-Cambria, indicated he had some strong reservations about supporting the revenue package. A Republican senator, Z. H. Confair, Lycoming, said he would help pass the two-cent-a-gallon gas tax boost, then left Harrisburg for New Orleans.

Own Hearing

Haluska said he would hold his own hearings Thursday, Friday and Saturday in Johnstown to decide his own position on the revenue program.

"I want to see what Cambria County will get out of it," the senator said in an interview.

"Unless the administration has a program for Cambria County that gives us major highway construction and improvements and employment, I can't see my way clear to support any new tax," he added.

Haluska said none of the present interstate highway projections outlined by the Highways Department touch Cambria County, and added: "I am little interested in interstate highways that go elsewhere."

He said he would like to see U.S. 219, between Somerset and DuBois—passing through Cambria County—improved substantially.

"We also want to look into some of these other tax changes—insurance companies and federal savings and loan firms," he said.

The Senate and House adjourned until 10 a.m. Wednesday. Lawmakers of both houses and parties packed the House caucus room to hear discussions of the Lawrence budget by the Joint House and Senate Appropriations Committee.

Called to an evening hearing was the Commerce Department—earmarked for an allocation of $16,401,600 in state funds, including $3 million for industrial development.

Fleming contended the measure—which would reduce the number of names needed for a referendum on limited Sunday sales in hotels in the two cities—would open the door to public liquor sales on Sunday in all parts of the Commonwealth.

Passengers' Fate Still In Doubt, Talks Continue

RECIFE, Brazil (AP)—On the assumption that Brazil's new President Janio Quadros would be agreeable, authorities went ahead Tuesday night with preparations to receive the Santa Maria and her nearly 600 captive passengers some time Wednesday.

The only remaining obstacle appeared to be clearance demanded by the rebel Portuguese ship commander, Capt. Henrique Galvao, from the newly inaugurated Quadros.

RECIFE, Brazil (AP)—The U.S. Navy dickered inconclusively Tuesday with Portuguese rebel Capt. Henrique Galvao aboard the Santa Maria amid wavering hopes that the nearly 600 captive passengers would be landed Wednesday.

At one point Galvao was reported to have again threatened to scuttle the ship if any effort is made to seize it.

The question appeared to be whether the passengers would be brought in to walk ashore from the Santa Maria at the Recife piers or be hazardedly transferred to another ship at sea in the dangerously heaving tropical South Atlantic miles offshore. But Galvao also was reported to have said again he would sail across the Atlantic—perhaps seeking haven at Accra, Ghana.

Galvao said he must have Brazilian government clearance—presumably assurance that the Santa Maria will not be taken from him if he steams into Recife.

Confer 2½ Hours U.S. Rear Adm. Allen E. Smith Jr., with two circling destroyers at his command, conferred 2½ hours with Galvao on the Santa Maria 55 miles southeast of Recife.

In a somber report afterward, the admiral said the situation was not "as definite as all concerned would like it to be." He told reporters there were some things discussed that had to be kept secret for the present.

The attitude of the new Brazilian President Janio Quadros, who was inaugurated at Brasilia at noon, may provide the answer to whether Galvao will steam into Recife, transfer the passengers at sea or even sail away with them as hostages against any attack by Portuguese warships on the far side of the Atlantic. Quadros initially had been favorable to Galvao in his battle against the Portuguese dictatorship.

But the Jornal de Comercio of Recife said Galvao told Adm. Smith "I will sink my ship" if the Brazilian government tries to seize it.

Aside from the question of scuttling, Smith was reported also to have asked Galvao what he would do if a Brazilian ship tried to stop the seized liner and the rebel leader replied:

"I will defend myself and I think the Americans should protect my ship because American passengers are aboard. But I do not believe the Brazilians will try to interfere with the ship."

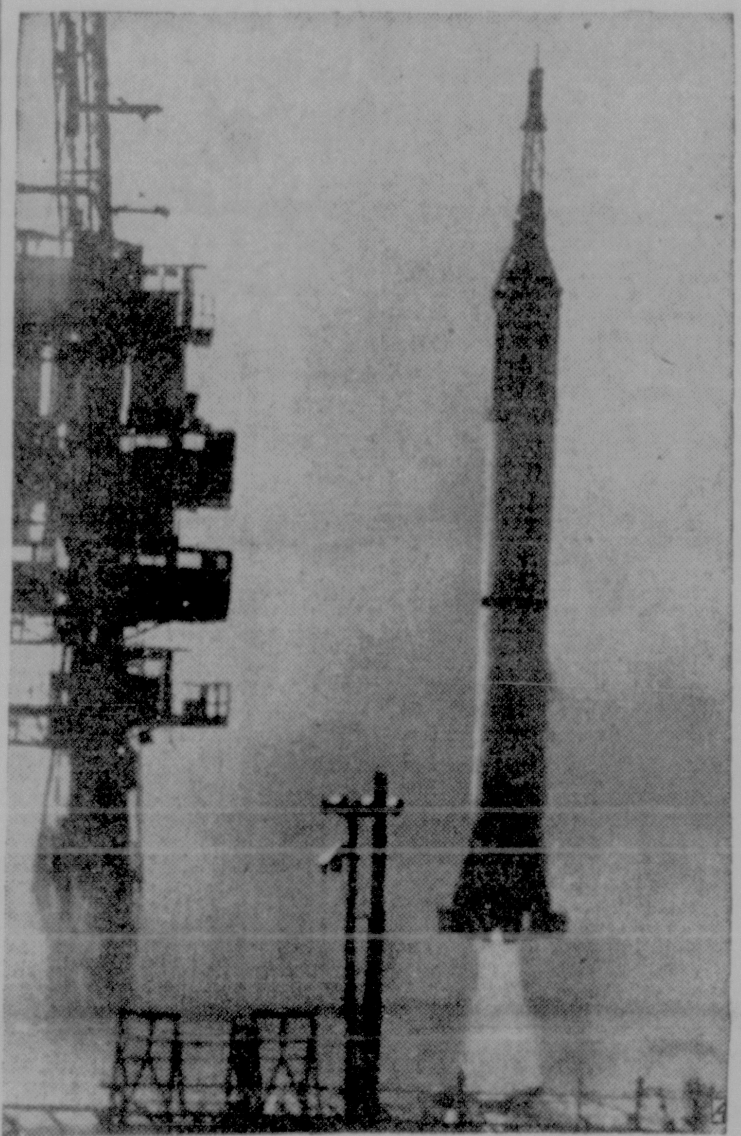

Smith told newsmen following the Santa Maria conference he got the impression that Galvao intended ed somehow to get in touch with the Quadros government and appeared to be confident that Quadros would offer haven to the liner. While on the Santa Maria, Smith told the passengers over the liner's public address system:

"You have had the sympathy of the entire world. I have just conducted a conference with Capt. Galvao. He has given me strong reason to believe that he intends to discharge all passengers.

"Within 24 hours I hope all of you will be disembarked. Do not, however, be too optimistic."

You CAN Get Better Grades

Use 3-Times-Over System To Master Tough Lessons

By LESLIE J. NASON, Ed.D., with HARRY KARNs

MUCH of the knowledge you are expected to absorb must be obtained through reading.

But here's a very sad fact: Most of what nearly everybody reads evaporates quickly from his memory.

In today's chat, we are going to give you a plan which will help anchor in your mind a large part of what you read so it will be there ready for use when needed.

The outcome of reading by hap-hazard methods is so bad that we sometimes wonder why people bother at all. Tests have shown that a so-called good reader can get 20 per cent of the ideas in an article in the first reading, but that a week later little of the information remains lodged in his mind.

You'll never be able to plug all the holes in this sieve called the human brain. But you can plug up many of them if you go about it in the right way.

George told us he couldn't answer questions on tests to the satisfaction of his teacher. We took a look at his papers. They revealed that George wasn't getting or retaining precise meanings from his textbook.

Our advice to George was simple. Here we suggest it to you as a general pattern for your reading. In a later article, we will go into greater detail.

Once Isn't Enough Read your assignments three times, as follows:

One, skim through the entire assignment to get a general idea of what the chapter is about.

Two, keep this general idea in mind and read the assignment again with the aim of fitting the information and that idea together.

Three, having fitted the big idea and the information together in a main pattern, read for details and exact meanings and associate them with the proper larger items in the general outline.

Thurman Wade, the speed-reader we told you about in the first article, compares reading with the working of a jigsaw puzzle:

"You don't progress very fast if you scatter the pieces on the table and try to fit them together by trial and error."

The smart jigsaw puzzle first takes a good look at the picture on the box. Is it a landscape? Then he sees that the blue pieces are going to fit into the sky and the green pieces into the trees. And that spotted pieces represent the grazing cow.

"He conditions himself to

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—A wrinkle-faced little chimpanzee nicknamed "Ham" was plucked alive from the Atlantic Ocean Tuesday after a 420-mile ride through space aboard a rocket.

The survival of the cheerful ape demonstrated conclusively that a man could duplicate a similar flight and return to earth unscathed.

Indeed, one of the United States' seven Astronauts may undertake a somewhat similar flight sometime within the next two or three months.

One of the six Astronauts witnessing the space launching of the furry, black chimp, Air Force Capt. Leroy G. Cooper, said after the launching: "Nothing succeeds like success. I am extremely happy with the shot."

Cooper may well be one of those who will undertake an identical flight some time in the future.

The shot was not an unqualified success, however. The Redstone rocket buried the capsule too high and too far. Its performance could cause officials to take a long, hard look at the system before deciding to risk a human life.

The smart little ape, still enclosed in his 2,400-pound space capsule, was picked up by a recovery ship, the U.S.S. Donner, at 3:41 p.m.

Chimp Is Alive

Within minutes after the capsule had been brought to the deck of the Donner, the Navy flashed word that the 37½-pound male chimp was alive and in good condition.

After a physical examination aboard the Donner, Ham is scheduled to be flown by helicopter to a hospital ship at Grand Bahama Island for further checks and then will be flown back to Cape Canaveral.

Another official said the flight went so good he could see no reason why there should be further delays in manned flight.

Because the rocket misfired, the chimp was shot 155 miles up, 40 miles more than planned, and 420 miles down range, 130 miles past the target area where a fleet of planes and ships waited to make the recovery. He also traveled at a speed of 5,000 miles an hour, 800 miles over the scheduled limit.

Radio signals were received from the capsule for 13 minutes of the 16-minute flight and then contact was lost.

It was not until the recovery, therefore, that scientists knew whether the tiny animal survived.

During the time radio signals were received, the chimp pushed various levers and performed other behavior tasks assigned him.

Dr. Kurt Debus, who conducted the launch, said the Redstone rocket lost thrust shortly before its scheduled burnout time and the escape tower mechanism, sensing trouble, automatically fired itself and jerked the capsule away from the booster.

The pull of the escape tower and the "kick" administered by the booster rocket to separate the capsule at burnout increased the speed of the capsule so it was projected beyond its target.

The steeper re-entry path resulting from the greater height probably subjected the chimp to more crushing forces than he was expected to have to stand.

Maj. Dan Mosley, chief of the bio-astronautics branch at Holloman Air Force Base, N. M., said telemetry signals showed the chimp performed his behavior duties "wonderfully."

He was trained to depress a lever each time a red or blue light flashed on. Had he failed to do this during the flight, he would have received a mild electric shock.

The flight indicated a man could make such a trip but that the techniques in the still embryonic age of space aviation are something to be desired.

Some time this year, it is planned to put a man in a low orbit around the earth in which he will travel at 17,400 miles an hour. It still is too soon to tell whether the partial failure in the flight of the chimp will affect the more extensive experiment.

Ham was selected for the flight from a colony of six trained chimps, because he appeared to have the best mental attitude and was in better physical condition. The little space ape was dressed in a nylon suit. He was strapped in a pressurized, cocoon-like plastic couch fastened to the floor of the capsule.

A clear plastic face plate enabled him to see what went on around him. Electronic devices were attached to his body to measure his heart beat, body temperature and job performance during his big adventure.

Only his head and arms were free to move. The levers he pushed were by each hand.

AF Fires 'Survey' Satellite

POINT ARGUELLO, Calif. (AP)—The United States Tuesday fired into orbit the first of a series of military reconnaissance satellites designed to make detailed photographs of any point on earth.

Samos I's mission is a pioneering one: To test photographic equipment. So hush-hush is the series the Air Force wouldn't say whether it actually will radio pictures back to earth.

The ultimate goal, a year or more away, is a whole system of long-lived satellites equipped with both conventional and television cameras.

They are expected to take pictures, and return them on call of anything anywhere that can be spotted from the orbiting altitude of 300 miles. So precise is the equipment that photographs are expected to equal the view from a human eye at 100 feet.

Samos I, launched last October, failed to orbit. Samos II lifted off at 12:23 p.m. and vanished almost immediately into low, leaden overcast that caused intermittent drizzles at this Navy base adjoining Vandenberg Air Force Base, 170 miles northwest of Los Angeles.

A little more than two hours later, the Air Force announced it had achieved polar orbit and is circling the globe every 95 minutes at altitudes ranging from 300 to 350 miles.

The Air Force says Samos is primarily an electronic scout to warn against a military buildup by any potential enemy.

Samos pictures could be used for maps and spotting troop movements, concentrations of war materials and construction of military bases.

Miss Thompson Columnist, Dies

LISBON, Portugal (AP)—Dorothy Thompson, 66, newspaper columnist and author whose pronounced opinions often embroiled her in controversy, was found dead of a heart attack Tuesday.

She was visiting her daughter-in-law in Lisbon, a city she first came to know when it was a neutral port in the storm of World War II. At that time she told a newsman that Lisbon was "so calm, yet so colorful and gay—a wonderful city to live in and even to die in."

Deadly Gas Spews From Train, Kills Baby, 50 Are Hospitalized

NEW ROADS, La. (AP)—Deadly chlorine gas—first of the war poisons—spewed from a train wreck Tuesday, killing a baby and hospitalizing about 50 other persons.

Borne on shifting winds, green clouds of vapor critically poisoned 10 of the half hundred.

Scores of farm animals died amidst the lethal patches of floating gas.

It drove about 1,000 from homes and schools and made uninhabitable several square miles of southeast Louisiana.

The gas came from a ruptured tank car containing liquid chlorine buried beneath a pile of 15 cars of the 117-car Kansas City Southern Railway freight. Eighteen cars in all derailed.

Children Evacuated Louisiana National Guardsmen and Civil Defense workers with carbines and masks cut off a section of the highway running alongside the tangled wreckage. Volunteers herded 400 children of the Labarre school to the top of a Mississippi River levee jutting above the low-hanging gas.

Three miles west of New Roads, officials evacuated Morganza High School and transferred the 300 students to Innis, 15 miles west.

Residents fled from 14 homes lining the tracks. Oliver Basquine, 35, a Negro, rescued his mother and father from one of the houses.

"They couldn't see," he said. "They could walk but we had to lead them. People in houses were hollering and trying to catch their breaths. It was choking them."

Worst hit was a family named Harris. Father, mother and four children collapsed from the gas and 11-month-old James Harris III died at a hospital.

Six of the 10 persons on the critical list were the rest of the Negro Harris family.

Victims—wheezing, coughing and vomiting from the acrid fumes—quickly jammed the 24-bed St. Joseph Hospital. In all, the hospital treated 50 persons, many in corridors.

More than five hours after the train stacked up at Labarre, volunteers began throwing soda ash, a neutralizing agent, into track-side ditches that ran two feet deep in green chlorine. The wreck happened at 8 a.m. when an overheated gear box caused an axle to snap.

For most of those five hours, the green gas billowed up from the wreck. Lawrence Crochet, who lives just across from the wreck scene, said clouds of green fumes masked the wreck in a matter of four or five minutes.

Basquine lost 37 hogs to the killing gas. Crochet lost 20 hogs. All around the area hogs, cows, mules, ducks and chickens died where they stood.

Dear Abby

Pointed Comments

DEAR ABBY: Awhile back you started a campaign to get rid of the sack dress. How about a campaign to get rid of those horrible pointed shoes?

I have held out buying shoes for a year and my feet are almost back to normal again. There are just no comfortable, good-looking shoes to be had any more. Even elderly women are hobbling around in those ridiculous pointed-toe, spindly-heeled shoes. And the steel tips are ruining everybody's linoleum and carpets! Gosh, Abby, can't you do something about it?

FOOTSORE AND WEARY

DEAR F. AND W.: I am told the women "love" the new pointed shoes. (Yes, and even the spindly heels that ruin the floor covering!) I may be a heel—but I am not sold!

DEAR ABBY: Some neighbors of ours were very friendly at first. Then all of a sudden they stopped coming to see us, so I went over there one night to see what was wrong.

Through the window I could see her and her husband sitting there watching television, but I couldn't get in because the screen door was latched. I wrote her a letter telling her I thought it was insulting to lock up a house as tight as a bank so people couldn't even get up on the porch to ring the bell. She ignored my letter. Don't you think there is something wrong with people who lock themselves in?

FRIENDLY NEIGHBOR

DEAR FRIENDLY: Folks lock themselves in—but they frequently lock others out. Latch on to some friendlier neighbors.

DEAR ABBY: My best girl-friend's husband is the type who "loves his wife but oh, you kid!" He tells her he has to work late, go to a meeting, etc., and in the meantime he is running around with other women.

She is a wonderful person. They have two small children. Do you think it's my place to tell her? This has been going on for about four years. They have been married for five.

A VERY GOOD FRIEND

DEAR FRIEND: If you are "a very good friend" . . . tell HIM, not her.

Confidential to "Troubled Teen": It's nice to be important, but it's more important to be nice.

E. S. Budget Calls For 3-Mill Tax Increase

EAST Stroudsburg Borough Council last night authorized advertisement of a 1961 budget calling for general operating receipts and expenditures of $212,995.82 and increasing millage from 12 to 15.

Of the total receipts, $44,000 will come from a councilmanic bond issue and will be used to finance the borough's share of a sanitary landfill operation, food control and a new snow loader. The figures are $10,000 for the landfill equipment and building, $20,000 for food control and $14,000 for the snow loader. Major operating expenditures will include $4,500 for planning; $4,375 for operation of the sanitary landfill, $2,282.40 for street lighting, $1,140 for a snow plow and $1,020 for a traffic signal.

In addition to the $44,000 from the bond issue, major revenues are expected to be $88,823.28 from real estate and occupational taxes; $11,500 from parking meters and $10,100 from prior year taxes.

The 15-mill tax rate includes 13 mills for the general fund and two mills for the sinking fund. Last year's 12 mills tax included 11 for general fund purposes and one mill for sinking fund.

Also approved for advertising was a water fund budget calling for receipts and cash on hand of $12,938.90 and expenditures of $62,010, leaving an unappropriated surplus of $50,928.90.

The sinking fund budget calls for receipts and balance of $13,411.05 and estimated expenditures of $11,429.80, leaving an unappropriated balance of $1,981.25.

The sewer fund budget lists estimated receipts and balance of $32,213.78 and estimated expenditures of $23,750, leaving a surplus of $8,463.78.

The highway aid fund lists receipts and expenditures of $19,155.74. Sterling, Craner, borough manager, emphasized that these figures are based on last year and are not final in view of changes in mileage and population figures and the possibility of an increase in the gasoline tax.

In other action, Council voted to advertise re-enactment of the $5 per capita tax, a levy which under the law must be re-enacted each year, although, in effect, it is a continuing tax.

Council directed Craner to pay E. H. Rhinehart $4,137 for a new street department truck, delivered recently.

It was announced that Sid Blum, traffic engineer for the State Highways Dept., will meet with the borough street committee next Monday afternoon.

Speculate On Flood Possibility

THE POSSIBILITY of a flood in the Delaware River Valley if the proper combination of weather factors should combine was voiced by Robert Fish, deputy rivermaster at Milford.

Fish emphasized there is no certainty that a "dangerous combination" of factors—rapid melting and warm rain—will develop.

If the snow and ice melt gradually a steady runoff will ease the dangerous situation, he said. He added the river and tributary streams are at their lowest level for this time of year since 1948.

Fish said the potential for a flood exists because of snow cover of about 24 inches in the Milford area and ice generally in the river. Ice upstream is more than a foot thick, he said. The snow cover is less heavy above Milford, he said. Water content of the snow at Milford is about two and one-half inches.

Truckers To Review Legislation

HARRISBURG — New bills proposed by Gov. David L. Lawrence to the 1961 session of the State Legislature will be reviewed by Monroe and Pike County truck owners. The new measures are part of the Governor's Traffic Safety Program started a year ago.

The proposed legislation will be discussed by members of the Pennsylvania Motor Truck Association's Monroe-Pike County Chapter, William Osborn, president, during the Feb. 6 chapter meeting at Albino's Restaurant in East Stroudsburg.

Included in the Governor's "legislative package" is a bill that would regulate truck speeds on steep hills, for which he was publicly commended by PMTA. A similar measure was supported by PMTA in the 1959 session of the Legislature.

Chapter members will also discuss the "Which Way" reporting project, one phase of PMTA's safety program. Through this project many inadequate and hazardous signing conditions on Pennsylvania highways have been reported to the proper officials. Many of the conditions have been either corrected or improved.

Fire Burns Prove Fatal

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP)—Joseph Obrzut, 54, died Sunday night in Scranton State Hospital of burns suffered earlier in the day while helping his daughter escape from their flaming home in Olyphant. Obrzut had escaped safely, then reentered the home and helped the daughter, Carol, 21, to a second floor porch roof, from where firemen took them. She was less seriously burned.

Catholics To Observe Special Day

THURSDAY will be the Feast of the Purification of the Blessed Virgin Mary for Roman Catholics. It is also called Candlemas Day.

Mass at St. Matthew's Church, East Stroudsburg, will begin at 7 a.m. and at St. Luke's, Stroudsburg, at 8 a.m. Candles will be blessed and distributed after the Mass.

On Friday will be the Feast of St. Blaise (first Friday). Masses in St. Matthew's are at 6:30 and 9 a.m. At St. Luke's it will begin at 8 a.m.

Throats will be blessed after the masses at 4 and 7:30 p.m., in both churches on Friday.

Confessions will be heard Thursday at 4:15 and 7:15 p.m. at the churches.

FOP Dance 'Success'

FRATERNAL Order of Police officials announced last night that their recent floor show dance was a financial and social success.

Gaylord Heberling, spokesman for the group, said the affair, held in the American Legion Home, East Stroudsburg, last Friday, compared favorably with last year's first annual event.

He also reported that the FOP presented the top gift to Joseph Vogt of Mountainhome.

TB Society Reports On Seal Drive

ELWOOD Hintze, president, appointed a nominating committee consisting of Mrs. Warren Mikels, Mrs. Nelson Beers and Mrs. Robert L. Clark at a meeting of directors of the Monroe County Tuberculosis and Health Society last night.

The report of Mrs. Estelle Fleming, executive director, showed $10,928.02 collected in the annual Christmas Seal sale, compared to $11,490.94 the year before.

Twenty-nine volunteers spend approximately 208 hours preparing seal sale letters, the report showed.

It also showed 1,550 pupils in first through seventh grades participated in the tuberculin testing program. A total of 113 X-rays under society sponsorship were given in Monroe County General Hospital in the period from Nov. 1 to Jan. 31.

Deer-Feeding Group Seeking To Organize

STUDIES for legally organizing the Food For Deer and Wildlife Group were considered yesterday at a meeting of Barrett sportsmen at Penn-Stroud Hotel.

John Valence, public relations officer for the organization presided at the session. He said it was the hope of the sportsmen to construct a year-around program in deer feeding. This, he said, would prevent any further deer from starvation.

Valence outlined the group's past performances and what is hoped for the future.

Attorneys Charles Bensinger and Detlef A. Hansen advised the unit on what is needed to be a legally constituted body. Advice on finances was given by J. L. Cohen, public accountant.

It was reported that canisters will be distributed throughout Monroe County to raise funds. The same method will be used in the adjoining counties of Wayne and Pike in the near future.

The organization's deer-feed program continued yesterday while the meeting was in progress.

Warrant Officer Michael Rodriguez, a helicopter pilot from Fort Devens, Mass., dropped 180 bales of foodstuff over points at Barrett Twp., Cresco Heights, Promised Land State Park and Pike County.

In another maneuver, sportsmen from Barrett, Mount Pocono and Pocono Lake cooperated in airlifting feed at Devils Hole in Paradise and areas near Pocono Lake.

John Spencer, district game protector at the scene, said "a couple of hours work had accomplished what would have taken 30 days on foot."

The helicopter and pilot returned to the home base after completing its work. Sportsmen in the area will continue distribution of food by truck, car and bulldozer.

A full-time headquarters has been donated free of charge for the Public Relations Offices and also a display will be placed in the offices showing what is going on in forest today. The space is directly opposite the Penn Stroud Hotel and the space was donated by the 18 N. Seventh St. Corp. This was formerly the Daily Record Building.

The display was presented to the Lions Club of Stroudsburg last night and a plea was made to the Lions Club by John Valence to try in every way to advise and assist in the monumental task of feeding the starving deer and wildlife in the Poconos. The display will be shown to all the service clubs, and any club desiring to see this may contact HA 1-6100 and a member of the Barrett Sportsmen's Group will be available.

A telephone call was received last night from Mrs. Ellen Albenz, president of the Monroe County SPCA, urging the 500 members to support the food for the deer and wildlife, box 33, Canadensis.

She said "if the state doesn't feed the animals someone must do it." She also said the SPCA will make a contribution to the drive today.

Because of the heavy demand for feed distributed by the helicopters, the organization finds it necessary to solicit more funds to feed the deer, Valence said. Donations may be sent directly to Russ Dann, treasurer, Canadensis.

Postoffice Opens; Equipment Lacking

NEWFOUNDLAND—The new postoffice opened here on Monday morning for business, although only a third of the equipment has been received to date.

Postmaster C. L. Beesacker noted that Miss Iris Moritz, of Newfoundland, made the first purchase of stamps, and the first letter dropped was directed to Thorr, Texas.

Postmaster Beesacker and his wife, Alberta, who is a clerk, spent a busy day trying to locate the things moved from the old postoffice and explaining the use of the new boxes to the patrons.

The new office is expected to increase the efficiency and ease of handling of the mail service in this area. The remaining equipment is due "momentarily."

U. S. Steel Corp Reports Income

NEW YORK (AP)—United States Steel Corp. Tuesday reported 1960 net income of $304,520,681, equal to $5.17 a share. Directors declared the usual quarterly dividend of 75 cents.

Earnings for the in-and-out year compared with $23,975,686, or $4.24 a share, for 1959, when profits were cut deeply by a 116-day strike. Record high earnings of $319,406,956 or $7.33 a share were posted in 1957.

The dividend will be paid March 10 to stockholders of record Feb. 10.

Gas Tax Boost Justified On Basis Of Need, Benefit

A new tax which, in our opinion, is justified on the basis of actual need and economic benefit, is the two-cent gas tax increase proposed by Gov. David L. Lawrence.

Boosting the state tax to seven cents a gallon would raise an additional $71,000,000 during the coming year to help finance the much-needed 475 million dollar road program outlined by Highways Secretary Park H. Martin.

Independent engineering surveys support the Administration's estimate of the amount of money required to carry out the program. The state explained it was forced to step up its planning schedule to meet the accelerating use of roads within the Commonwealth.

It is on the basis of the independent surveys, backed up by continuing studies made by the U.S. Bureau of Public Roads, that at least one Republican senator, Z. H. Confair of Williamsport, decided to support the Governor's proposal.

The senator said he sees the highway improvement program as a major factor in attracting more industries and more tourists to Pennsylvania. The rise in employment which is bound to result will speed the economic growth everywhere in the state, one of the prime distressed areas of the nation.

Sen. Confair has been one of the foremost workers on behalf of the Keystone Shortway. Extending 291 miles from Stroudsburg to Sharon, the superhighway will open up vast new economic opportunities all across the heartland of Pennsylvania.

The Shortway is only one of a number of expressways which will be financed under the Interstate and Defense Highway Program in which the Federal Government pays 90 percent of the costs, and the state the remaining 10 percent.

George Sokolsky Says . . .

A Wife Speaks

The Duchess of Windsor has done something not too unusual, even in these days of casual marriage. She has defended her husband, a defense which seems somewhat not to be necessary although her statement of the case most interesting.

The Duchess feels that the Duke has been badly treated, in fact, persecuted by a "family-designed, government-manufactured curtain of asbestos." What must seem to the public is that the Duke made his choice between "the woman I love" and the Crown. At any rate, they have lived happily ever after, in the United States and France. Every family has its own way of doing things. For instance, in some families when a member marries "out," he is disinherited. "Out" usually means out of his class, out of his religion, out of his race.

In a world where there is free choice of marriage, there is also free choice to be unpleasant about it, as relations sometimes are. The objection to the Duchess was that she had twice been divorced, a state of affairs upon which the Anglican Church frowns. Princess Margaret, when she sought to marry a divorced gentleman was told not to.

Probably she really did not care much about it, for a clever woman usually finds some way of getting around her family although the Archbishop of Canterbury may be tougher.

The Duke, however, told them off. He went to the radio and made a speech to which all the world listened with bated breath, telling them to keep their old crown and he will have his lady-love, come what may. And so it was.

Of course, one need not be nasty about it forever. The Duke is a delightful person, well-liked in this country by all who know him. The Duchess is as American as Maryland fried chicken and if the British do not quite understand her, they might assume that Americans do.

At any rate, it is good to know that she pays her bills, for the gossip has been that she did not. This is her own statement of the case.

"While I am on the subject of money, I would like to state here once and for all time: The Duke and I pay our bills! Oddly enough, the slanderous gossip that we do not has only recently reached my ears, and I was completely bowled over by it.

It is beyond me how rumors like these start, since we never have any complaints from the people with whom we trade."

So that ends a tale that I have heard for about 10 years and it just goes to show how nobody tells a person that he has halitosis - not even your best friend.

We are all gossiped about. The late Alfred Kohlberg, a dear friend and a violent anti-Communist, left behind him a beautiful fur coat which his widow, Ida, kindly gave me. So I heard the tale that it was sent to me from Russia.

It is like all the stories about John Kennedy, our young President. If one believed half the stories one hears, he would indeed have to believe that John Kennedy has outdone both Casanova and Till Eulenspiegel.

However, no man, living or dead, could have accomplished so much in one short life and at the same time spent so much time on trivia. Therefore, the smart thing to do is to smile at a good story, to laugh at a brilliant one and to worry not a whit.

Now that the Duchess of Windsor has got all this off her chest, let her, like Eleanor Roosevelt, turn to something really interesting and concerning which she is a specialist, namely, household management, food selection if one has the price and floral decorations at which she is a master.

At any rate, the British Royal Family is not likely to change its attitude, although they all did go to Margaret's wedding to Mr. Armstrong-Jones who is not exactly their dish of tea, although why not, I cannot imagine. He looks all right to me, but then I am neither a Queen nor a consort of a Queen. They must have different criteria.

When the Duchess returns to New York, perhaps I shall suggest to her that, like Eleanor Roosevelt, she write about all the things that come into her head. It makes such an original point of view.

Other major projects include the Annapolis Expressway, Penn-Can Highway, Erie-to-Pittsburgh Thruway, Delaware (Philadelphia) Expressway and others.

The added revenue also is earmarked for the 50-50 state-federal road-building program and the 100 percent state system for which no federal funds are appropriated.

An adequate highway system would be an assist to our economy at a time when Pennsylvania has an unemployment population of approximately 433,000, or 9.3 percent. This is in contrast to a federal unemployment figure of 5.7 percent.

New industries choose sites which can be reached easily by good highways. Firms representing nearly half of the total plant investment and 61 percent of the employment along Massachusetts Route 128 report that employee accessibility was an important factor in the decision to locate near the route.

Development of our particular area depends largely upon the implementing of present plans for a vast network of highways to serve the Poconos. We must have these modern-type roads if we are to hold our existing industries and attract new ones to our midst.

The only sensible way to get the highways is to build them as best we can on a pay-as-we-go basis. And the fairest way to underwrite the costs is to let the highway users pick up the tab, through taxes and other means.

Pennsylvanians rate among the lowest in all the 50 states in the total amount of automotive taxes paid. Realization of this fact, coupled with their desire for safe and modern highways, should remove the major objections they might have to any increase in the gasoline tax.

Okay, Or Kayo?

The Pennsylvania Story

Roads Costly

By Mason Denison
Harrisburg — Are Pennsylvania's four-lane expressways of tomorrow destined to be loaded with midget cars, scooters and roller skates?

The question is an absurd one of course, but in over-emphasis to drive home a point, it is being asked with more and more frequency by those opposing the Lawrence Administration's proposal to increase Pennsylvania's gas tax two cents a gallon.

The point these "oppositionists" are trying to make is an interesting one, notwithstanding a lack of hilarious convulsions on their part.

It is their contention that an increasingly heavy load of taxes on the motoring front — while it will help build the billion-dollar system of expressways and roads the administration insists is needed yesterday, or today at the latest — will in irony raise the cost of driving a standard automobile so high that motorists is effect will turn en masse to the more economical midget cars as an economy move.

It would indeed be an ironic picture if the monstrous highways being built today were to be ultimately smothered by a horde of economical motorized beetles rather than the larger vehicles for which originally designed — and paid for! There is considerable debate here on Capitol Hill though as to whether all the funds requested by the Lawrence Administration for road building purposes actually are needed with the speed and dispatch requested — needed that is, in a relative sense with all factors considered.

There are arguments of course on both sides of the fence. The two cents a gallon increase in state tax proposed by the administration undoubtedly would provide for new and modernized highways sooner. Programs of the future could be brought into the construction picture today.

In relation to all factors — most notably perhaps the economic factor — how critical is the overall picture?

None of this was given the slightest opportunity for clarification or debate last week when controlling Democratic administration forces in the House of Representatives within 72 hours rammed through the gas tax increase legislation.

Supposing you are an "average" motorist. It is generally considered that "on the average" a motorist will drive something around 10,000 miles a year. Supposing you average 16 miles per gallon (!) in your family gas buggy. This means you would consume some 600 gallons of gasoline a year. Using this as a base figure, here are some points worth noting:

In Pennsylvania today you pay five cents a gallon state tax or about $30 a year. Add to this the two cents a gallon increase proposed by the Lawrence Administration and your yearly gas tax bill would round out to about $42.

But — on top of this, you have a four-cent federal gas tax on each gallon of gasoline purchased, or for a year something like $24. Add this to the total (including the proposed increase for Pennsylvania) and you'll be paying around $66 in gas tax alone in one year.

There is this salient fact: highways today cannot be built out of peanut shells — or coal. They cost money. Motorists everywhere are screaming daily at lawmakers and highway officials over their "terrible" roads, or complete lack thereof.

If the roads demanded are to be built speedily the funds will have to be provided somehow — and the only known method to date of accomplishing this minor item is via the taxation method.

In the case of Pennsylvania, is a two-cent increase needed or would a one-cent increase suffice — or should the program be continued at the present level?

The decision is up to the legislative branch and certainly in such an important move the arguments pro and con should be heard in public hearings. They weren't last week when the administration-controlled House rammed through the increased tax jazz!

It will be interesting to see whether the Senate proves to be equally obtuse. Now, about those midget cars, scooters and roller skates . . .

By Luther Markin

Mortimer's New York Confidential

From Peoria mit Palm Trees comes word that Laurence Harvey is positively flabbergasted at those reports elsewhere that he's buying a Hollywood honeymoon cottage for Joan Cohn. Says he doesn't plan to get married again for a long time. Joan, who was briefly wed to Harry Karl, who was married to Marie McDonald before he merged with Debbie Reynolds, would like to try it again. Or so they say and just who is "they?"

Well, we won't be penning those Nancy Kovack items much longer because she and actor Peter Romano, who did so well in "Splendor in the Grass," are engaged and will do it in the early Spring. Now if Miss Novak would do the same there'd be another one we could forget. But for how long? . . . Nico Minardos who was married to Debbie Loew who was married to Tyrone Power may say the "I dos" with singer Cathi Hayes in the near future. . . . And Esther Williams' ex, Ben Gage, who switched to another new one this week: De Leone Wellington. . . . And Scott Brady whose newest interest is Florence Irvine who teaches him cha cha at Arthur Murray's. . . . Which reminds me. A straight dramatic actress may go far in movies. But she'll go farther if she's curved. Now now Mortimer.

A confidential memo from me to me about the "inside" of why Sammy Davis, Jr., did not appear at the Inaugural Ball. He was told he was cordially invited but he would have to leave his wife, May Britt, home which seems to be some kind of thinking in reverse. . . . Broadway still shocked by the antics of the Martin Luther King "testimony" at Carnegie Hall with the booze flowing on stage, the audience full of wealthy left-wingers and the meaning of the occasion completely forgotten by the hams who ran it for their own glory and the smoothies who horned in on it.

David Susskind, who pontificates on everything, will undoubtedly be shocked if Tony Curtis gets an Oscar for "The Great Imposter" which he so richly deserves. . . . That gold bracelet fashioned like a rope that Barbara Luna is sporting is a little something from Doug McClure who'd like to tie her up at that. . . . And now the Rogers & Cowan office which said I didn't know what I was talking about when I itemed that Shirley MaLaine wouldn't make the Inaugural because she would be in Japan (where she was-and is) claims that Anna Maria Alberghetti, hardly knows Tony Franciosa and that she hasn't been at the places where I put her, even with Claudio Guzman whom she's been dating for a year-and-a-half. (And Mr. Guzman doesn't like her being anywhere with Mr. Franciosa, even if she isn't.) And if Rogers & Cowan are right for a change, then some other press agents are going to be awful wrong.

Wouldn't it be a good idea if those people who are so afraid of resuming nuclear testing because Russia may not like it would read Patrick Henry's words again: "Give me liberty or give me death!"

Washington—Although general tax revision now appears to be unlikely in 1961, there is still a chance for action on several proposed changes, including a better break for business on depreciation.

Rep. Wilbur Mills (D-Ark.), chairman of the tax-writing

Inside You And Yours

Dear Doctor

Dear Doctor: My husband belches for an hour or more before falling asleep, even when he eats a light supper. I have to stay awake ready to rush to get something to help him.

What can I do? I need more sleep.

Mrs. J. G.
Dear Mrs. G.: Most gas is air which you swallow with your drinking, smoking, eating and chewing.

Ask your doctor about acid neutralizers and medicines to quiet the stomach muscle.

Perhaps your husband can't belch at once because the gas is trapped in tiny mucus-covered bubbles. Your doctor can prescribe a silicone medicine (methyl polysiloxane) to dissolve the foam into one large bubble which should come up easily and quickly.

What is that "something" you rush to get to help him?

Dear Doctor: Because of a heart ailment, my ankles swell and I can barely put on my shoes.

How can I overcome this swelling?

Mr. R. T.
Dear Mr. T.: This heart ailment calls for continuous care by your own doctor.

Your body is storing extra salt and water which sink to your feet when you sit and stand. With your feet up on pillows, fluid should slowly drain down into other parts of your body.

Your doctor will probably prescribe injections or pills to drain off this extra salt water. The less salt you eat, the less collects.

If you're the roly poly type, a wholesome calorie-cutting diet may help.

Dear Doctor: My hair is dry and falling out.

Will shampooing help? How often?

Mrs. A. C.
Dear Mrs. C.: Dry hair and fallout may show a need for thyroid medicine, a psychiatrist's couch or the proper shampoo.

My barber tells me to rub in an oily shampoo twice a week. So does my television set. No one can say without first pin-pointing your hair trouble.

Dear Doctor: Mother has diabetes. My brother has it now.

How can I prevent it?

Mrs. D. B.
Dear Mrs. B.: You can't prevent diabetes but you can prevent its complications. Check with your doctor — especially if you're always thirsty and running to the bathroom.

Even though diabetes runs in your family, it may miss you.

Dear Mr. Editor:

Having fond memories of being raised in this community and being a mother of four children, I feel I can speak as a parent concerned for all our growing children's future in Stroudsburg.

It distressed me to read there is a rise in juvenile delinquency and that we may need a Detention Home.

Grant that broken homes and irresponsible parents do help make real delinquents—that is true. If we really reason, we know boys and girls need plenty of physical activity to keep them out of trouble.

But, the big but is that keeping out of trouble starts when they are very young and continues through Junior High and High School. Habits and character are formed by being taught to respect the rights and properties of others and by wholesome clean sports.

Let's face it. Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Clubs and YMCA's are marvelous and some parents can afford to have them enrolled. They do a great job.

To me it seems what we really need in our growing community are more simple area play courts or community-leased open fields.

These would keep boys away from street corners and closer to home. We agree teenagers must respect property rights and most of them do.

But have you ever tried having a regular baseball team or football team set up on a postage stamp size lot? Mine included!

If they play ball on the street they must watch the picture windows and parked cars plus the lovely green lawns. So they are chased away.

In adolescent years boys and girls are not sure of themselves; they must belong and follow the crowd. They are sure of their own groups in their own neighborhood. They know each other well.

They form teams with whomever is available, big or small, to start a football game rolling. They make their own fair rules among themselves and they will not tolerate a bully.

Older fellows show younger boys the right way to hold a bat or pass a football. Usually they pick one who already had experience on the football team.

How do I know? Well, let me tell you. Here in South Stroudsburg we have been fortunate. One person has allowed the boys on his lot as it is larger. They held regular team games and played teams from other sections. It was a thrill to watch all sizes dressed form proposals to Congress by April 1. These are now expected to include provisions for closing such "loopholes" as the 4 percent tax credit on dividend income enacted in 1954.

In the same package, however, there may be included a proposed "investment credit" to spur business expansion. As put forward by a Kennedy task force headed by Stanley Surrey, this would permit businesses to deduct from their tax bill a certain percentage of sums invested in new plant and equipment over and above their current depreciation allowances.

Such a tax break would not satisfy businessmen completely, but it would go a long way toward achieving their goal of a "realistic depreciation policy" for tax purposes.

Check for Reform — In 1959 American corporations claimed a total of $20.7 billion in deductions for depreciation and amortization of plant and equipment worth $370 billion, less accumulated depreciation amounting to $135 billion. (An unknown but substantial additional amount of depreciation was claimed by unincorporated businesses.)

Industry economists say this amount of depreciation understated the actual rate of capital consumption by at least $6 billion. The reason: recovery of capital outlay through annual depreciation is limited to an asset's original cost under current tax law, whereas replacement cost has doubled or tripled as the result of inflation.

Realistic depreciation allowances, say business spokesmen, should be based on replacement rather than original cost as a matter of simple justice.

To this argument they have added the appeal that higher depreciation allowances, by encouraging faster replacement of obsolete plant and equipment, would serve to step up the nation's rate of economic growth — a central objective of the Kennedy Administration.

Cast Against Reform — Industry's campaign for a faster and bigger payoff on its investment via "depreciation reform" has encountered little political opposition and is unrelated to the heated controversy over the 27.5 percent depletion allowance enjoyed by the oil and gas industry. Some economists, however, have challenged the arguments advanced by business spokesmen.

Higher depreciation allowances amount to a tax cut for business, they say, that means a permanent loss of revenue to the Treasury. The argument that inflation has eroded the value of depreciation ignores the fact that business assets have nevertheless grown in value and that these capital gains are taxed lightly if at all.

These critics also argue that higher depreciation allowances would favor large established firms over small new businesses. (Of $15.8 billion claimed in 1955, one-half went to companies with at least $100 million in assets.) As for stimulating growth, they say, other kinds of tax cuts or increased spending might be more effective in raising total demand.

Most economists appear to agree, however, that an increase in capital formation relative to consumption is essential to boosting the growth rate. Higher rates of investment, encouraged by increased depreciation allowances or an investment credit, would work in that direction, even if slowly.

According to one estimate, an immediate raise of $1 billion in depreciation would produce only $150 million in additional investment over the next 18 months. In the long run, however, the effect would multiply.

Whether the Administration will propose and Congress enact such a tax cut for business in 1961 is still an open question. But the case for "a better system of capital recovery allowances," as President Eisenhower put it in his final budget message, appears to enjoy more support than at any previous time.

More Play Areas Urged

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

The collect of numerous women's organizations reads "It is the little things that create differences; in the big things of life we are as one." Far be it from me to argue with the federated judgment of a million or so organized women, but I still think we feel closer to each other over little things than over things that are so big that they're bound to seem a little impersonal.

For instance the Monroe Council of United Church Women are united in many big projects which they pursue with earnest devotion. But when they really relaxed and felt "as one" at their dinner last night was when Mrs. Roger Stimson mentioned, in passing, that she was dressing for the dinner she suddenly realized that she was wearing the same hat she'd worn when she was elected the first president two years ago.

"One thing you can look forward to this year," she pointed out, "is having a president who won't wear the same old hat for two years straight." And since Mary Leister does love beautiful hats there was general laughter and another burst when Mrs. Leister observed wryly "I'm afraid your new president is coming with inadequate qualifications!"

Actually, of course, they all grow closer together collecting Christmas stockings, planning and sharing programs, studying and doing research on matters of common interest, and Mrs. Leister is the most enthusiastic worker of all.

But you can admire somebody for their intelligence, drive and conduct and you can respect their opinions, but still not like them very much.

It's when you find out that they collect crazy hats, or love scrubbing but hate dusting, or would rather play bridge than eat, or spoil their grandchildren — that they become human — somebody you understand and who most likely will forgive you your trespasses, too.

Nobody's going to come to a Council meeting to see Mrs. Leister's new hat—but they're

Maybe The Boss' Son Isn't Such A Bad Guy

"The only reason he's head of the company is because his father owns it," is an out-dated, cliché which overlooks the fact that in today's competitive market a real dunder could run any business into the ground within a year.

In other words, the Pretender to the family business throne is apt to have as much on the ball as Daddy has.

Psychological Danger

The psychological danger of being "under Daddy's thumb" beyond the age of maturity has been so overplayed that we forget how many young men have enriched themselves in more ways than one by following happily in Papa's footsteps and doing a bang-up job.

Jerome C. Cirkor, vigorous President of Cirkor's Moving and Storage Company, is the third generation leader. His grandfather started with an open cart and a team of horses in 1873, when a mover's biggest problem was moving the polebelled stove which was still hot when the men carried it down the stairs.

Father Tutored Him

By 1934, when Jerome himself joined the business, it consisted of a fleet of about six motor vans. Under the tutelage of his father, he was trained in every detail of how to direct a large long-distance moving operation.

On his father's death in 1950, he became president of the company and devoted himself to promoting progressive policies and methods.

Wrong Assumption

A sales manager I know was doing extremely well, but when the owner's two sons finished college and came in as trainees, he assumed that the rug was about to be pulled out from under him and began to do his job in a routine manner. Finally, convinced there was no opportunity for anyone who was not a relative, he moved into a different company where he actually made more less.

It is perfectly true that there are a handful of companies where nepotism reigns; where relatives with no ability are given jobs over employees with real ability. But these are the exception and not the rule. It pays at least to approach such a situation with an open mind and not to jump too hastily

Church Women Of County United In Spirit, New President Tells Council

The Monroe Council of Church Women "represents a great diversity of forms of worship, of political parties, of background, and even on the days on which we worship—but we are united in oneness of spirit in joyous fellowship," Mrs. Claude Leister said in her brief acceptance speech as president of the Council.

She and the slate of officers for the year were elected at the second annual dinner meeting last night at the East Stroudsburg Methodist Church when the roll call was answered by 160 women representing 16 congregations.

Mrs. Roger Stimson, president of the Council during the first two years of its existence, was given a rising vote of thanks for her services.

Mrs. Leister, a member of the Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church, was first vice president of the group. Elected as first vice president for the new year was Mrs. Edward Horn, St. Paul's Lutheran, Tannersville; as second vice president, Mrs. Melvin Dunn of the Zion United Church of Christ, Stroudsburg; as secretary, Mrs. G. Wells Van Campen of the Seventh Day Adventist Church; going to feel a lot cozier with her and with each other for watching for it. And feel a lot more relaxed over what hat they'll wear, knowing that Mrs. Stimson wore the same one for two years — and looked very nice in it, too.

Moving Company Dates Back To "Pot Belled Stove" Days

the dice were rolled against her and she settled into a routine with none of her old initiative and zip.

Basic Difficulty

The basic difficulty in all such problems is our tendency to categorize the newcomers instead of looking at them as individuals.

If this problem arises in your life, don't automatically assume that the relative coming into the company is a stupid lunk-head who could never get a job unless he were related to the boss. Look at him as a member of the human race, with abilities and talents, and with goals and aims not too different from your own.

Weigh The Situation

If he turns out to be a fool and if the company turns out to be a closed corporation to all outside the family, then certainly move to more promising pastures.

But don't throw away your many years of good work in a sound company just because a relative enters the premises. He may be a lot brighter and nicer to work with than you imagine.

Shirley Strada

Donald Simon

King, Queen Named For May Day

Newfoundland — Shirley Strada, of Sterling, and Donald Simon, Greentown, have been chosen by popular vote at Southern Wayne Joint School to reign as King and Queen of the May during the annual May Day program.

The May Queen for 1961 is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Strada. She has been a member of the senior band and chorus, and was chosen for county band and chorus last year. She has been a majorette for six years, and a cheerleader for three, serving as vice president of the cheerleaders' organization this year and secretary last year.

She was a member of the Junior Tri-Hi-Y for two years and the senior unit for four. She has served on the student council for three years, twice as class representative and once as class president. She has been honored this year by Greene-Dreher Chapter, Future Farmers of America, who have chosen her as their "Chapter Sweetheart."

Donald Simon is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Simon, Greentown. He is a member of the Future Farmers of America and was a winner in the judging contest at the Wayne County Fair last summer. He is a member of the varsity basketball team, the Stags, as well as the baseball and volleyball teams. He has been active in Scout Troop 123, B.S.A., and the Explorers. He has played in the band and sung in the school chorus during his high school career. He was a member of the 1960 May Day Court. He plans to enter the service after graduation this year.

The "royalty" will select their flower girls and train bearers from among the first graders at SWJS. The crowning of the king and queen will be featured at the May Day program and dance this spring.

A.B. Wyckoff
STROUDSBURG, PA.

I'm no mathematical genius, but it's easy enough for me to keep score of such things as the number of tumbles I've taken recently. THREE—added to which I've ripped three pairs of stockings in three days. Yet three is supposed to be my lucky number.

When my last pair of stockings gave way the other day, I was furious for a moment. Then it occurred to me that this world would be in a tragic state if nothing ever wore out. If curtains, bedspreads, rugs, automobiles, electrical appliances and so on lasted forever, just imagine what a depression there'd be! Manufacturing and selling would be at a standstill . . . and we'd all be bored to death by the same old things day in and day out. Once this thought sank in I ceased to mourn my stockings. True, I hadn't expected to buy a box of hosiery just now . . . but I suppose it's better to have one upset budget than an entire world in economic chaos.

It isn't often I hear the one minute spot commercials I write each day for Wyckoff's. The first is aired by Mr. Morning; the second, on the Three Star Extra at noon. I have heard, however, that the fellows at WVPO could cheerfully throttle me whenever those spots concern such intimate feminine things as ladies' lingerie and girdles.

The other noon I was lunching at home and the radio was tuned to 840. Suddenly Joe Whalen's voice came over the air, briskly and assuredly. He was talking about an item at Wyckoff's of special interest to women . . . Playtex Fashion Bras, formerly 2.50 each, now special priced at two for 3.99—a saving of 1.01. If Joe was annoyed by the message, no one would ever have guessed. Everyone around our table commented on the manner in which he read it. He has an excellent voice and delivery, and his roundup of news was lucid, interesting, and well worth hearing.

Some of the artists arriving at Wyckoff's to take their paintings away from our Art Show, had the happy surprise of finding both entries sold. I am reminded of this, seeing John Janning of Blairtown, waiting in the hall for Arthur Widmer's return from lunch. Mr. Janning, a native of Holland, always comes in laden with small paintings, and always finds a ready sale for them. In his eighties, he paints with a simplicity and charm that is captivating, and shrewdly prices his work within the budget of the average family.

Among the artists who sold paintings at this show were John Farley, Adele Katz, Mr. Widmer, E. Clewell, Eda Brentini, Marilyn Dwyer, and Beatrice Crowther.

A note on my desk from Mr. Wyckoff asks me to publicize the annual World Day of Prayer, to be observed at St. John's Lutheran Church Friday, February 17th, at two o'clock. We will have more details later, but would remind you now that the service is always impressive, and part of a great chain of worship encircling the globe on that day. Participate, won't you?

We might also mention that February 14th is Valentine's Day—as though you didn't know! Right now, Wyckoff's has a dazzling array of cards, as well as 1,000 jewels suited to the occasion. The latter are in the form of pins . . . double, single, and triple hearts, some rather stylized in contour, dripping "breathing rubies"—bright red gems that seem to pulsate as the wearer walks or moves. Very pretty and rich looking.

Parade Of Homes: Designed For City Living

A "U" SHAPED floor plan, studio ceilings, smart contemporary styling are some of the features that place this home in a special category. We hear a great deal about space utilization—but it doesn't necessarily follow that the patio area in a room arrangement of this kind is wasted. The open roof patio in this design is so planned that it will be the focal point of your social activities.

Carport placement provides a welcome screen. This home is especially suited to the living requirements of the city dweller, whose need for privacy is greater and whose building site is limited in area. However, by changing the carport placement, the plan would be ideal for a scenic building site.

In keeping with the original purpose of the design, let us study the front elevation. Note the masonry wall along the face of the building. The only "break" actually, is the top to bottom glass entry. Specially cut glass windows above the wall provides ample light and retain desirable privacy for the homeowner.

To the right of the entry hall you have a spacious, arresting living room. The corner ledge-rook fireplace leaves an unbroken wall "L" for furniture placement, because your special-cut windows start eight feet from floor level and extend to the roof line.

Entrance to the open roof patio is through a sliding wall. The patio itself deserves special attention. The inner wall, backing hall storage closets, is constructed of striated plywood. Above the door to hallway and plywood construction are four stationary windows, which provide light for hall area. Patio is separated from carport by planting box with two six inch x six inch wood post supports. A barbecue grill near the living room completes this separation leaving an open entrance-way to the carport.

There's a sliding glass wall between patio and master bedroom. You can see how greatly your living space can be increased to accommodate various social activities or your own relaxation needs. Master bedroom features a separate lavatory with shower, which is also accessible from hobby room, and a walk-in closet with sliding doors. Two smaller bedrooms complete the sleeping area.

The dining room contains a double size built-in for china. Here again we have specially cut windows extending from the top of the china cabinet to the roof line. Additional light and ventilation is provided by sliding type side window. Snack bar and cabinets serve as partial dividers between dining room and kitchen.

Sliding door shuts off utility room from kitchen. Compact utility room contains laundry equipment beneath window with heating unit and water heater occupying opposite side of the room. Bath has vanity unit and a linen closet.

Exterior construction is of brick veneer and has striated plywood on left side starting at window level to roof line. Carport has solid masonry wall and door to rear hobby and store room. Rear yard is accessible from the latter.

This plan conforms to general FHA, VA and Building Code requirements. Included with this plan you receive Specification Guide, Material List, and Conversion Detail Sheet. Your builder or material supplier can give you the average cost per square or cubic foot in your area.

"Complete Building Plan, including Detail Sheet, Material List and Specification Guide for Design No. H-570 may be purchased for $9.75 for first set; two for $18.25; three for $26.25; or four for $33.75. You may also purchase The Daily Record Plan Book showing 70 Designs for Today & Tomorrow for 75 cents postpaid. Address all questions and orders to Homeograph Home Plan Dept., The Daily Record, Warren, Michigan."

ON THE HOUSE

By Andy Lang
AP Newsfeatures

IF YOU'RE thinking of buying a house, your first decision is how much you can afford to pay for it.

There are various ways of arriving at this decision. One of the most widely-quoted is that which says you can afford a home costing two and one-half times your annual income.

What income? The gross? Or the one you actually get? And if this applies to a man and wife with no children, what about the couple with five children? Also, what about the difference in the monthly payments for the family who can afford to make a down payment of $5,000 and the one who can afford a down payment of only $2,000?

No, the question of how much housing you can afford can not be answered simply by any such rough estimate. Every case is individual and must be treated that way. If, at the time you start looking for a house, you are burdened down with a lot of installment payments that will continue for a considerable period of time, you must take that into consideration. If you are reasonably free of debt and have a little something put aside for emergencies, you can afford a better house than otherwise.

On the matter of a down payment, you always are better off to make it substantial. This not only will reduce the amount of your monthly payments, but will cost you less money in the long run. The bigger your mortgage and the longer you take to pay it, the more your house will cost. Many persons naturally can not afford to make a

Settling House Doesn't Mean It's Cracking Up

"SETTLING" of a new home is a natural phenomenon in the first year or so after a house is built as beams, studs, and other structural members seat and adjust themselves to weight and atmospheric conditions.

Rarely does this settling result in serious damage beyond tiny cracks that may appear in plaster or around doors and windows.

This is because builders and architects allow for settling with special construction techniques and building materials that adapt themselves to change.

A good example is the roofing material used by more builders than any other — asphalt shingles. These are tough and may give quarter of a century or more of protection, yet are pliable. Unlike brittle roofing materials that may crack under settling or extreme temperature changes, asphalt shingles adapt to these changes, continuing to provide an unbroken shield of protection.

Painted Furniture Is Back In Fashion

By Vivian Brown
AP Newsfeatures Writer

PAINTED FURNITURE is fashionable, which is good news for the do-it-yourself cult. Enamel is a paint that women can handle with ease. It may be applied easily, is odor-free and it dries quickly to a good-looking finish.

Gather up old scarred end tables, coffee tables, bedroom chests that are collecting dust in the attic and prepare them for a new life. The back-to-school set will enjoy the new look of a bedroom set that has been livened up with a gay color, so don't stop refurbishing until you've perked up your student's bedroom.

The new decorator colors in enamels are chic and modern. Turquoise, melon and reds are available, and one should be able to find an enamel to go with the present room decor, so that an entire room may not need re-doing. Yellow enameled furniture is charming with white walls, and with organically ruffled curtains if it is a young girl's room. Deep pink is gay when combined with white. The young man of the house may prefer more rugged colors in deeper tones.

Preparation of an old finish in good condition should be easy. All traces of dust, wax, oil or polish should be removed however with a paint thinner. Any gloss should be dulled with steel wool or sand paper. The surface should be clean and dry before the enamel is applied.

If the old finish is in poor condition, however, it should be removed with paint remover, making certain the room is well ventilated. Holes or cracks should be filled with putty or plastic wood. Commercial fillers are easy to use if directions are followed. When patched areas are dry, sand the surface lightly. Apply an enamel undercoat and let it dry thoroughly before applying the top coat. If you are not up on your enamels, consult your local store so that you get a good quality enamel.

The enamel should be put on in quick strokes, following the grain of the wood, with a brush that is generously filled. Stroke the surface across the wood grain without reloading the brush. This will help spread the enamel evenly. Tap the brush against the inside of the container until it is almost dry. Brush the surface again using long strokes following the grain of the wood. This will take up excess enamel which might run. The technique of enameling is different from ordinary painting.

Before you begin working on chests remove drawer pulls and other hardware. These are removed easily from most chests on the inside of the drawer with a screw driver. If not removable, cover the hardware with masking tape. Chairs and small tables are best painted on table height surfaces, if you'd save your back. Cover the area generously with newspapers to catch spatters. Enamel under surfaces first. Let it dry. Then place pieces right side up and finish. Self-spraying enamels are handy for pieces with intricate surfaces but these are not worth the effort or as efficient for bigger jobs.

Here's the Answer

By Andy Lang
AP Newsfeatures

QUESTION: Can you please tell me how I can get dark spots off my kitchen cupboard doors? The spots are in the area of the door handles. I have tried washing and using steel wool but these methods only dull the spots and do not remove them. The doors are driftwood finish, applied in two coats with steel wooling between the coats.

ANSWER: It appears that the spots are more than just ordinary dirt, otherwise the washing would have removed them. It is likely that grease has been deposited on the doors over a period of time and that it now has cut its way into the finish. That leaves you no choice but to put on a new finish, since it is unlikely that a patching job would be satisfactory. You will have to sand down the present finish lightly, then apply a coat of one of the special undercoaters designed specifically to cover and seal in marred areas. Explain the problem to your hardware or paint dealer and he will recommend the proper undercoater. When this solution has dried thoroughly, proceed with whatever finish you choose, once again giving it two coats, as was done originally. Complete the job with a coat of wax, which will take the brunt of any future marks near the handle. Wipe off finger marks as they occur, which will not be too difficult with the wax covering. Also, rewash the doors every year until a new finishing job is necessary. When that time occurs, remove all the wax with turpentine or a wax remover before refinishing.

QUESTION: In our backyard, we have one of those standing metal frameworks used to support a hammock. Over the years the metal has become rusted. How much of the rust must be taken off before the metal can be painted?

ANSWER: Not too many years ago it would have been necessary to remove all the rust before painting—unless one wanted the rust to eat through the paint later on. Today, however, there are rust primers on the market which stop the spread of rust and permit paint to be applied directly over the damaged areas. The first step is to remove all loose rust particles with a wire brush so that there is a smooth, reasonably sound surface — even though considerable rust remains. Next comes the application of the rust primer, which

Child's Wardrobe Suited For Other Jobs In House

WHEN WE designed this cabinet it was planned as a wardrobe for a child's room. Drawers were placed on one side, with space for clothes in the other half.

Folks like the unit so much we began receiving letters—lots of letters telling us how each writer built a second unit as a record cabinet, bar or hi-fi cabinet, etc.

Seems everyone liked the size and design so much, they found use for one in almost every room.

Measuring 43 inches wide, 13 inches deep and 48 inches high, the cabinet can be used to store china, silver or linens as readily as hi-fi components. The amplifier, record changer and AM can be placed on one side while the other half provides room for speakers or where separate speaker cabinets are used, space for record storage.

The pattern offered below takes all the mystery out of building. The material list tells what to buy and where each piece is used. Simplified step-by-step directions are written in language everyone can clearly understand. Best of all, no special tools or skill are required.

East Stroudsburg Wins 54-43

Cavaliers Beat Bangor; End Loss Streak At 13

EAST STROUDSBURG High School proved that 13 is an unlucky number to break a winning streak on a basketball court. The Cavaliers triumphed over Bangor 54-43 at East Stroudsburg last night.

Only about 400 people were on hand to see East Stroudsburg snap a 13 game losing streak and post its first victory of the season.

The win, which was scored in Lehigh-Northampton League play, moves the Cavaliers out of the cellar in the nine-team conference. Bangor, East Stroudsburg and Wilson Boro are tied for first place with 1-2 records in the second half. Coplay and Pen Argyl are on the bottom, at 0-3 each.

Until the final two minutes, Bangor had a chance to win the slow-paced game but could get within only four points of the Cavaliers, 45-41.

Both clubs used zone defenses and neither team was able to hit consistently from the floor. Even though the Slayers collected one more point on fouls than East Stroudsburg, 13-14, it was the Cavaliers' foul shots in the final period that played one of the biggest roles in the lead.

In that fourth quarter, East Stroudsburg hit 18 points, six of them coming on foul shots. Bangor, which scored only eight points in the final period, had only three foul shots in the last period and made two.

Convert Misses
The Cavaliers had 12 free throw chances in the fourth quarter and with their superior height, were able to convert most of the missed free throws into field goals.

Bangor's Ken Smith and Jim Brown collected all but 11 of the Slayers' points. Smith scored 17, high for the game and Brown was next in line with 15.

Jack Fellman led the Cavaliers, with 14 points, scored mainly on long one-handed shots from the corner. Don Wescott had 12 points and Brian Farris nine.

Loss Lead
Bangor, which held the lead through the first quarter, finally surrendered it with 6:30 left in the second quarter.

The score moved from one side of the scoreboard to the other, until it looked as if the Cavaliers might pull away near the end of the third frame.

East Stroudsburg had a five-point lead at that point, 34-29 but Bangor flurried and tossed in four straight points, to cut the margin and Jim Kehrig's field goal as the quarter ended, left the Cavaliers on top by only one, 36-35.

Smith opened the final period with two foul shots to put Bangor back on top 37-36. They were the last points the Slayers collected for the next 4:13 seconds.

In the meantime, East Stroudsburg reeled off nine straight points and pulled ahead, 45-37. It appeared over but Bangor still had a few more points coming. Doug Heard hit a jumper and Smith added a lay-up and it was 45-41.

Tap End Threat
Seconds after Smith connected, Earl Plamer tapped in a rebound and except for several lay-up buckets, it was all over.

Jim Steele, who replaced George Hack in the last period, when Hack fouled out, scored six points in the final period and it was his first field goal that put the Cavaliers ahead for good.

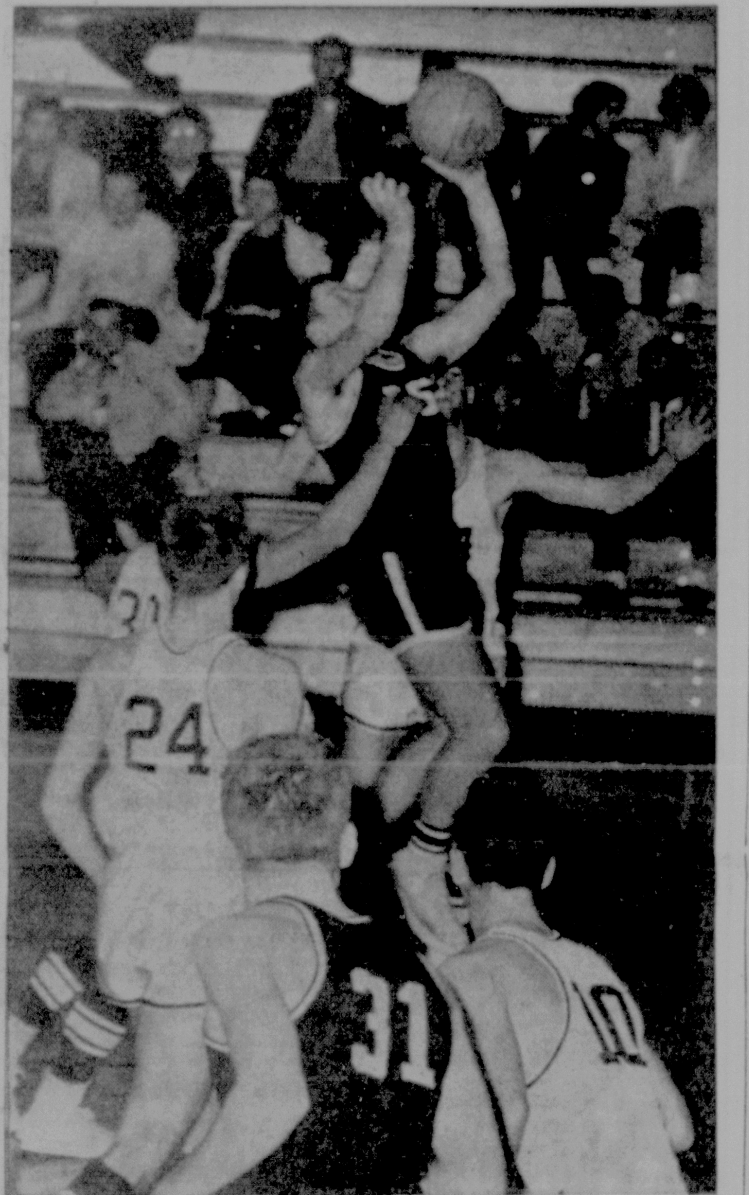

The Cavaliers played without Harold Myers, who is ill and Glen Kane, hobbled with a sprained ankle. But the Cavaliers still had too much height for the Slayers and controlled both boards easily.

The varsity win capped a triple-header victory for East Stroudsburg. The junior varsity won 63-42 over Bangor and in an afternoon game, East Stroudsburg junior high school beat Pleasant Valley's JV's, 64-22.

One Pill Still Missing

Hutchison Feels 2 Remedies Found For Cincinnati Ills

By FRED HUTCHINSON
BRADENTON, Fla. (AP)—Last year, our hitting was spotty, the defense questionable and the pitching inconsistent.

The Cincinnati club, I feel, remedied at least two of these weaknesses by acquiring Gene Freese from the White Sox and Joey Jay from the Braves. Freese hit 17 homers and drove in almost 30 runs last season, and he's certain to give us more power. Jay should be a better pitcher than he has shown. He'll get more chance to work regularly with us than he did with Milwaukee.

With Jay, Bob Purkey, Jim O'Toole, Jay Hook, Claude Osteen and Jim Maloney we have a good young pitching staff. They'll be backed up by Marshall Bridges, Bill Henry and Jim Brosnan. Pitching can be one of our strongest points if things go the way I expect.

Dropper's Good Men

I realize that we gave up good men in shortstop Roy McMillan and pitcher Cal McLish in order to get Freese and Jay. But I am hoping that either Leo Cardenas or Eddie Kaslo can do the job at short. Kaslo hit .292 for last season, and Cardenas proved himself an excellent fielder. Our infield will be a good one if Gordon Coleman can come through at first base and Jim Baumer at second. We have some fine reports on Baumer, who was drafted from the Pacific Coast League.

Big Coast Golf Event Opens Today

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP)—The last, longest and possibly the most lucrative of California's winter golf shows opens Wednesday when 128 pro shot shooting for a pot that could — with one lucky stroke — exceed $100,000.

They'll be shooting Sunday, for this 90-hole event, known as the Desert classic, runs five days and covers as many courses.

In addition to the regular prize money — $5,000 is guaranteed and substantially more may be added — a prize of $50,000 will go to any professional lucky to score a hole in one.

A year ago, Lloyd's of London insured the tournament against a hole in one for a premium of $4,850.

Campbell Connects
But Jay Campbell of Knoxville, Tenn., turned the tournament's modest investment into a real bargain by scoring on the 209-yard fifth hole at Tamarisk. The actaries thought that one over, and made this year's premium $13,500.

Campbell will be back and so will Arnold Palmer who won this event in 1960.

John Polonchak ... 3rd High Scorer

The Textile club is built around 5-10 sophomore, Herb Magee, who has averaged 26 points a game this season. He equaled the school's individual scoring mark in the King's win, when he dumped in 44 points.

Leading Freshman
Magee, who was the leading scorer on Textile's freshman team last year with a 17 point per game average, was chosen the most valuable player in the Quantico Marine Invitational Tournament in December.

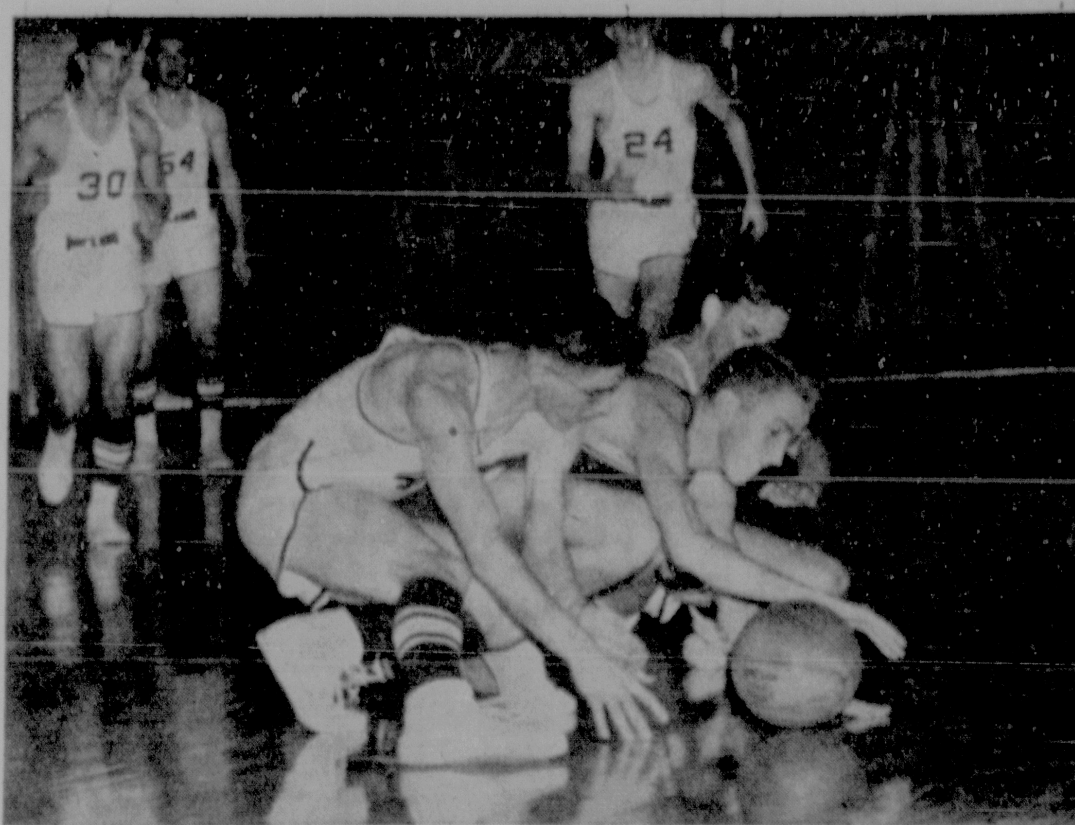

East Stroudsburg, 83, including a forfeit win over Bowie State College (Md) was beaten by Bloomsburg last Wednesday and Saturday night unbeaten Mansfield dropped the Warriors 88-81.

Russell Hopewell has regained the club's scoring leadership from Tony Salerno. Hopewell is averaging 17.8 points a game, while Salerno has a 16.7 mark. John Polonchak's 10.1 average is the only other double figures mark on the club.

Nears 900
Hopewell, who averaged 21.9 points a game last season, needs only 11 points tonight to run his three-year varsity total at Normal Hill to 900 points. Hopewell still has another year of varsity competition remaining.

Hopewell was above his average of last season in the earlier part of the campaign but he was held to 8, 3 and 6 points in three straight outings. He broke the slump Saturday with a 28-point outburst against Mansfield, his second best showing of the season. Against King's, Hopewell hit for 30 points.

The Warriors do not have an open date left on the schedule. They host West Chester Saturday night and are at Millersville a week from tonight.

Late Field Goal Sinks Mounties

ANDY Leichtenwalter's field goal, his only one of the night, with 23 seconds left in the game, gave Lehigh a 61-60 win over Stroud Union at Stroudsburg Tuesday night.

Until Leichtenwalter scored on a driving lay-up the Mountaineers, except for the first period, had held the lead.

Your Horoscope

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars. Feb. 22, Wednesday, is a good day. March 21 to April 20 (Aries)—Encouraging Mars, Moon, Mercury and other planetary vibrations today. A bright period for new interests, for adding new friends, for solving financial items, and many affairs.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus)—Be extra careful with personal interests and in artistic professions but day generally is generous. Favorable news and good news. Just show your talents and the fine ideas you have. Have faith, be busy. May 22 to June 21 (Gemini)—This can be a stirring, fruitful day for earnest, sincere wishes and endeavors. Work for present obligations and also for the problems and promising issues confronting us.

June 22 to July 21 (Cancer)—You don't need to garnish this day with any extra flourishes. Just show your talents and the fine ideas you have. Have faith, be busy. July 22 to August 21 (Leo)—Neither hindering tendencies nor are they very stimulating. You will have to be the director of your schedule and also cooperate with superiors and fellow-workers. Won't be too difficult.

August 22 to September 21 (Virgo)—Excellent influences. This whole month is filled with new advances and new places in which to try your varied original ideas, new conceptions, mechanics, etc. All are in prayer for those working for peace.

September 22 to October 21 (Libra)—Good advice. Taurus your day is similar. You can obtain help working with others and seeking advice from those you know are qualified to give it. Never discouraged. Always someone to help. October 22 to November 21 (Scorpio)—There is promise now for good ideas, smart promotions, and the various sciences of urgent import. Heed the warnings against those who would defeat our priceless freedom.

November 22 to December 21 (Sagittarius)—Not wholly auspicious for financial transactions, immediate gains from investments, BUT it is a good day for honest labor, conferences, sound plans and working with groups to aid democracy. December 22 to January 21 (Capricorn)—Today and next few days will need sound thinking, wise counsel, smart management of affairs to keep in line with what is expected of you. Seek advice, attend conferences, heed orders.

January 22 to February 19 (Aquarius)—Upright, honest, need for steadiness, determination (not stubbornness) and a ready willingness to comply with superiors' orders, government needs. Many blessings to be had for duty well done.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces)—Get matters started right today and it will all come to follow that are not auspicious. Extra forethought and clever dealing for betterment of life will pay dividends now and later.

BORN TODAY: Active, bright, a quick thinker but inclined to be at times too talkative. You like to meditate, too, and are as a rule mild tempered. You are on the Cancerian. Aunty's Cup and have a changeable, restless, honesty and straightforwardness are found in this sector. Don't let light-hearted wit can become morose and discouraged and be too, learn to know "yourself" and to fair to that self. Correct your ways with Gods help and care on the process. Birthdate: Victor Herbert, famed music composer. Clark Gable, actor, air force leader.

East Bangor Man Treated For Injuries

MICHAEL Nittle, 65, East Bangor, was reported in fair condition yesterday in Monroe County General Hospital where he is being treated for injuries received in a two-car accident Monday night on Central Ave., East Bangor.

He received cuts and bruises of the face and rib injuries, Arthur Stout, East Bangor police chief, said Nittle's car was backing across Central Ave. when it was involved in a collision with a vehicle driven by Robert J. Smale, 28, Bangor, RD 3.

Smale was treated at the office of Dr. J. Earle Brackbill for a head cut. Stout was assisted by Donald Rohr, Plainfield Township police chief.

Drive Set So Enforce Dog Law

AN intensified campaign against owners of unlicensed dogs beginning Feb. 15 was announced yesterday by dog law enforcement officers.

They warned that persons found owning or harboring unlicensed dogs will be prosecuted without exception. The minimum fine is $5 and costs while the maximum fine is $100 and costs or 30 days in jail or both.

Purpose of the check-up is to license all dogs having homes and to distinguish them from stray and homeless dogs. Strays can then be picked up and disposed of eliminating the possibility of their causing damage to livestock and poultry and also to prevent an outbreak of rabies among dogs.

All dogs not bearing a current license tag are considered strays and may be disposed of by any officer on sight. A fee of $2 is paid by the state for each stray disposed of.

The Bureau of Animal Industry reminded dog owners that purchase of a license does not permit the dog to run at large unaccompanied and it may be picked up by any officer if it does so.

Sportsmen To Plan Deer Feed

SPORTSMEN interested in the deer-feeding program in Mount Pocono and the surrounding townships will meet Thursday at 8 p.m. in the Little Brown Jug Restaurant, Mount Pocono, to organize a joint effort for the area.

William Powlett, who has been spearheading the drive, said there will be a discussion about organizing the movement on a permanent basis to operate the year round. Gun clubs are invited to send representatives.

The committee has purchased 160 bales of hay thus far and plans to buy additional amounts as the need arises. Almost the entire purchase has been taken into the woods and distributed where deer may find it.

Powlett and several other committee members made a survey yesterday and found that the deer had found and eaten the hay.

Canisters have been placed in a number of business places throughout the area where residents may contribute money to purchase hay and other feed. Anyone wishing to donate by check may do so by mailing a contribution to Help Feed the Deer, Mount Pocono.

Those desiring to donate in person may do so by contacting Powlett, Robert Besecker, Charles Cook, Charles Peterson, Francis O'Boyle and Richard Lutz, committee members.

News Notes From YMCA

By JACK CHAPMAN
YMCA Physical Director

THE STAFF at the YMCA thought it was time some boys and girls started thinking about camping this summer. This Saturday, a camp reunion will be held for those boys who attended Day Camp last Summer. An idea will be presented for boys to make money between now and camping season to pay their own way to camp this year.

The Youth Committee meeting scheduled for Jan. 26 was postponed because of bad weather. The meeting will be held Thursday at 6:30 p.m.

Any parents who would enjoy going to the Y Friday night with their children, are welcome to go in the pool or gym to watch them. A fee is charged parents who are non-members.

The Eastern Pennsylvania YMCA basketball championship will be held in Waynesboro this year. A committee is now being formed to make plans for a team from Monroe County YMCA to participate.

Art Critics Praise Paintings Shown By Water Gap Boy, 9

ONE OF the pictures recently on display in Wyckoff's Store, was the painting of a bird house. The picture was painted by a nine-year-old boy from Delaware Water Gap, a student in the fourth grade of the elementary school there.

The boy is Mark Williams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl W. Williams. Young Mark has received the praise of several art critics of Monroe County. They have agreed that his color perception is very good.

Roger Dunning, supervising principal of Stroud Union Elementary Schools, said, "I have seen the boy's work and he does very well in pastels and chalk."

Mrs. Paul Morton, the boy's teacher, said, "Mark not only is good at drawing but also very good in drafting. He devotes much of his free time to drawing and if left alone he would draw until someone came to him."

"When he has completed his lunch he will come to me and ask if it is permissible for him to draw until class begins," Mrs. Morton added.

When he begins a picture he will talk to anyone near him and continue with the conversation. When he has completed the drawing his conversation will come to an end and he will show you the result — his picture.

It was learned that the boy not only does well with his hands but he also is a good student in all subjects, not just one or two.

Mrs. Morton also said that she had learned that one of the boy's pictures will be on display in a Bushkill art show this Spring or Summer. She did not know the date.

Mark, who has been drawing since he entered school, has told Mrs. Morton and other teachers that he is now starting on water paints and is going to do more work with them.

He has done some oil painting at his home.

Mrs. Morton said, "The nicest thing about the boy, in addition to his painting, is that he is the type of a person that everyone likes. To talk to him and see the others in the class talk with him leaves a very warm spot in your heart."

E. C. Telling Appointed To Position

EDWARD C. Telling, formerly of 1734 N. Fifth St., Stroudsburg, has been appointed manager of the Carriage Goods Division of the Brewer-Titchener Corp., Cortland, N.Y., according to an announcement by Harold J. Flinn, executive vice president.

Brewer-Titchener Corp., 125-year old metal working company with three major plants in Central New York, manufactures pole line hardware for the electrical industry. BTC mobile seating and tables for commercial use, and BTC road construction items.

A graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, with Bachelor of Science and Business and Engineering Administration degrees, Telling is a registered professional engineer. He is a member of SAM, AIEE, and SAME, as well as a member at large in the Lehigh Valley MIT Alumni Assn. He also serves on the MIT Educational Council.

His previous administrative experience includes the position of manager of industrial engineering at the Pole Line Hardware Plant of Line Material Industries, a division of McGraw Edison Companies, East Stroudsburg.

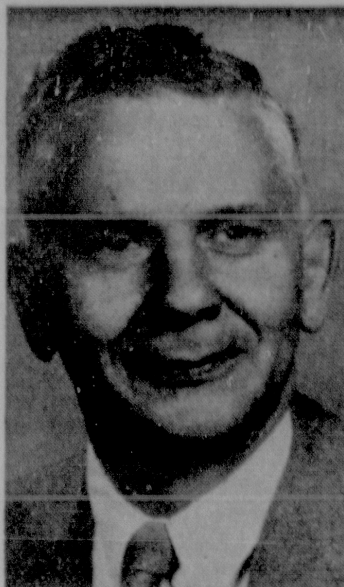

Telling, commissioned in the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers served in combat in Germany during World War II. During the early stages of the occupation he directed 3600 men in the construction of the occupation depot at Mannheim. Later he supervised the operation of 17 German factories.

Fire Sweeps 4-Room House

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Fire of undetermined cause swept a four-room frame house in Johnstown Monday and fatally burned 85-year-old Miss Elizabeth Wissinger.

Miss Wissinger lived alone. No estimate of the damage was available.

A police car taking the victim to Memorial Hospital collided with a gasoline truck, injuring two policemen, neither seriously.

No Buses For Students In West Indies

NEWFOUNDLAND—Among the interesting facts learned from an interview with Rev. Donald Henry, West Indian native and minister, was that there are no school buses in the West Indies, but that some students walk ten miles to school.

The interview, conducted by Pamela Eggert, Connie Kelter, Margie Gearhart and Bliss Arneberg, was described by Connie and Margie during the meeting of the Greentown-Newfoundland-South Sterling Youth Fellowship held at Hemlock Grove Church, Greentown.

Among the answers to questions the girls received was the fact that "young people here are married much younger than they are in the West Indies."

Rev. Henry noted that the youth group in the Islands is called the Wesley Guild.

Pamela Eggert assisted the two speakers in the worship service. Gerald McLain presided at the business meeting at which the discussion concerned future plans and programs. A planning meeting is set for later this week at the home of James Hinton, Panther.

The Feb. 5 meeting will be held at the Moravian Church and will include devotions and a program led by James Hinton and William Smith beginning at 7:30 p.m. The

Sgt. Casper Heads Police Sub-Station

MILFORD — Sgt. Harold W. Casper has assumed command of the local sub-station of the Pennsylvania State Police. He fills the vacancy caused by the death of Sgt. Glenn D. James.

A native of Scranton, Sgt. Casper was graduated from Carbondale High School and the training school of the former State Highway Patrol.

A veteran of 24 years with the State Police, he served with Troop K at Kingston, Troop B at Wyoming, Troop C at Blakeslee, was detailed to Honesdale from 1950 to 1953, returned to Blakeslee in 1958, was reassigned to Honesdale in 1959 and to the command of the New Milford detail last year.

He was promoted to corporal on Jan. 20, 1957, and became a sergeant last August.

He is married to the former Roberta Hogan and the couple has three children, Ann Marie, 13, Roberta, 16, and William, 13. Sgt. and Mrs. Casper have their home in Carbondale.
